7:30pm at the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, Terrace Theater

How can we find our way to understanding? Where can we find common ground? Who has left us a blueprint for creating the trust that transcends differing opinions and ideologies? We may find some answers by looking back more than 150 years to the words spoken and written by Abraham Lincoln and Frederick Douglass in this powerful staged reading by playwright Beth Duda with original poetry by Cedric Hameed. Abraham Lincoln and Frederick Douglass, A Walk to Respect provides us a powerful example of two men with different opinions and agendas coming together against all odds to produce positive change.
